

Sion Hill, Bristol

Pollard has gained a unique reputation as the builder with the skills to manage large and complex restoration works in the luxury residential sector.

With an extensive portfolio of projects in Somerset and Devon behind them the company were approached to carry out the complete restoration of this Georgian property which overlooks Brunel's famous Clifton Suspension Bridge.

Within the basement a swimming pool was installed whilst at roof level a new steel structure allowed the cramped attic rooms to be turned into the main bedroom suite.

Between these levels all the major rooms were restored to their former elegance with modern services carefully concealed within the structure.

Within the garden area we constructed a large conservatory and the garden was laid out with hard pavings, statuary and planting.

This stunning project was delivered to the client on time and within budget.
